

SOUTHERN MEDICAL STUDENTS SEEKING FROM THE UNIVERSITY.

On Tuesday afternoon a small placard was posted on the bulletin board of the Medical College, in Fourteenth street, calling on Southern students to meet in one of the Lecture Rooms of the College. About one hundred Northern, Southern, and Canadians, responded, and after a stormy and peculiarly Southern debate, an adjournment was had till last evening. At eight o'clock the gang, usually sounding to call students to lectures was rung, and about one hundred and fifty young men came together. The majority were Southern students, though here and there might be seen a Northerner awaiting the "irrepressible conflict." Mr. T. J. Taylor, a fine-looking Virginia gentleman, was called to the chair, and Mr. Kirby and Mr. Fountain were made Secretaries.

The President announced that the first business was the reading of resolutions which had been drafted by the Committee. They were in substance as follows:

Resolved, That we should the people attempt to elevate to the speakership an inferior of Helper's infamous libel on the South, Southern students ought to do so.

Resolved, That we approve of the many course of Gov. Wise in opposing the raid of John Brown.

Resolved, That we have all confidence in the Faculty of this University to consider none in the world superior to them.

Another was then presented as the minority report, as follows:

Resolved, That we approve of the action of the Philadelphia students in leaving the medical college for Southern ones.

Resolved, That we advise all Southern students to leave their houses, and return to breathe an air tainted with abolitionism.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt thanks to Mr. O'Connor for his truthful and noble speech at the Academy of Music.

It was here announced that a reporter was in the room. Loud cried: "Let him out." A gentleman arose and said: "He is from The New-York Herald. [Cheers.] The Herald is true to the South; let him stay—put him by the President." After several motions it was moved and carried that he be invited to take a seat on the platform. The reporter, who, up to the time of the passing of the resolutions, had been hitching around uneasily in his seat, now declaimed the magnanimous honor, sank down quietly to his notes, amid cheers for The Herald.

The question was then taken upon the first resolution, calling on Southern students to support Southern institutions.

It was stricken out—the yeas being tremendous. Mr. Pieron arose amid some confusion, and wished to say that the object of this meeting was not to discuss politics, but to decide whether the Southern students should leave New-York. That question he was ready to meet. After some more disorder, the second resolution, or one saying that if a Republican Speaker was elected, the Southern students would leave, was brought up. A gentleman here rose in the body of the house.

Mr. Owen, said the Chairman.

Mr. Owen, corrected the speaker.

The debate was evidently laboring under much excitement, and made some very highfalutin remarks about Northern institutions, and emphatically announced at the top of his voice, that he was from Alabama. [Loud cheers.] The resolution was then struck out, no one seeming to know how he was voting, whistling, hallooing, &c. being with difficulty restrained.

A resolution, saying that it was time for students to express their opinions, was then called. A tall, black-haired gentleman, with a shawl, on the back seat, said the passage of such a resolution would be perfectly ridiculous, at this late hour. "Weeks after Brown had been executed, for my students to be expressing our opinions was absurd." [Cheers.] A motion was made and carried that all but Southern students sit back seats. Dr. Owen thought all Northern men with Southern sentiments ought to speak, and be heard. There were men in this room born Northern soul as true to Southern rights as any Southerner here. [Cheers.] Dr. Kiernan, a gentleman speaking with a strong Irish brogue, arose and said that at the last meeting he avowed that though born in Canada he was Southern all over—he would repeat it. They were here to night to decide whether Southern students should leave New-York—they ought not. New-York medical students had always been treated with respect. The faculty of this University were each and every one true to the South. Students in Philadelphia were justified in leaving; 25 or 30 Southern students were locked up in the caboose for defending Southern rights. This was a Southern faculty on Northern ground.

A student from the College of Physicians and Surgeons wants to speak. He is a Southern man, and if they won't let him speak, he will go.

The President—"You can speak, Sir."

"The Southern" man did not avail himself of the privilege.

The resolution indorsing Gov. Wise was then called up and struck out. Then came the resolution stating that the students have all confidence in the ability of the Professors. A gentleman, stating that he was a Virginia gentleman, arose and said as a graduate he did not mean to participate in this debate, but he wanted to say that if that meeting would not endorse Gov. Wise, they should not endorse Northern professors. One of the professors in this College was a Black Republican (shouting), and all the rest were hung dead, dead. A great, somewhat excited movement all that remained in the room, but in the hurry of departure from New-York he left the chair, which was occupied by the speaker. The chair was deposited at the County Court House, where the forgery was detected. The prisoner was committed to await an examination by Recorder Bedford.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The Board of Education held a regular meeting last evening, President Warren in the chair.

The Twenty-second Ward asked for $4,382 for school furniture. Referred. Also for $1,169 for heating apparatus in the building in Forty-seventh street. Granted.

The Eighteenth Ward asked for $16,000 for a new primary school-house. Referred.

The President announced that Seth Grosvenor's executors had transferred to the Board $30,000 in cash and securities, the amount of his legacy to the Board of Education. The securities were referred to the Finance Committee for examination.

The Twenty-third-street student arose to speak. Dr. Thomas, one of the lecturers in the College, was immediately behind him, and also arose. [Loud cries of "Thomas!" "Thomas!"] "Don't do it!" Twenty-third-street man with a very red face and a shawl, didn't care a d—n whether students left or not—he should. He then subsided, muttering curses upon Abolitionists.

At this point the confusion was awful, about a dozen men attempting to get the floor. Dr. Owen again got the floor amid cries of "he has the floor all the time." We have come here to decide whether we shall leave our Alma Mater or not. He thought they ought not to do so. The resolution indorsing Mr. O'Connor was then passed, with a few faces and a shawl, didn't care a d—n whether students left or not—he should.

He then subsided, muttering curses upon Abolitionists.

The Eighteenth Ward asked for $16,000 for a new primary school-house. Referred.

Dr. Eager presented a resolution ordering the reading of the Bible in the evening schools. Objected to, and withdrawn.

After long labor, the Controller was informed, by resolution, that by a clerical error the amount of the annual estimate exceeded the amount authorized by law, by the sum of $5,291.

Meers, Stafford & Adams, being defeated in an attempt to secure the Principals in the male departments of their Ward, the Sixteenth, $300 per year more than is paid to any other, filibustered generally during the remainder of the evening. The session was prolonged until 10 o'clock. All the business transacted during the five hours of session might have been better done in a third of the time.

PROTECTION TO EMIGRANTS AGAINST TICKET AND HOTEL SWINDLES.—The delegates of the various benevolent societies, whose object it is to protect the emigrants of foreign countries, arriving at this port, and guard them against the swindles perpetrated on them by the runners of the various ticket offices and hotels, last evening held a meeting at the office of the German Savings Bank, in the Cooper Institute. The Committee on Constitution, appointed at the former meeting, submitted a plan of a constitution, which, after a few alterations, was accepted and ordered to be printed. It is then to be sent to the various societies.

THE OCTOORON.—The Octooron continues nightly to draw good houses, the interest being rather increased than diminished by the thousand idle rumors circulated as to injunctions being issued, and all manner of terrible appliances brought to bear to prevent its performance. We believe there is little apprehension on this head. The play is the property of the management. The Octooron will continue to be performed here, and rumors to the contrary can only serve to swell the tide of success on which this piece is riding onward.
